

EB-5 / INDIAN FAMILIES

Planning EB-5 as an Indian family.

Who applies, who joins and how to plan for children, funds and life between countries.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Plan around each person. Not just one application.

Start with who wants to live in the U.S. A parent investing for the family and a student investing with a parental gift are different applications, with different family and timing considerations.

Country of birth usually determines the visa queue.

Living in Dubai or holding another passport does not normally change chargeability. Exceptions may apply. Check the current Visa Bulletin and the chart USCIS permits for filing.

THREE DECISIONS TO MAKE EARLY

01

Choose the investor

Consider the family's residence goals and whether a parent or student should apply.

02

Review children's ages

Child-protection rules need an individual calculation. A filing date alone is not a guarantee.

03

Map the funds

Document the donor, gift and transfers. Review applicable Indian banking, remittance and tax rules.

A major rule in EB-5 is that capital must be at risk. You can lose some or all of your investment. Immigration approval and investment repayment are not guaranteed.

YOUR NEXT STEP

Bring the family plan. We help connect it.

You may be applying from India, the Gulf or the U.S. These questions make the first conversation more useful.

- [ ] Who needs a Green Card?
  List each family member's date and country of birth, marital status and intended move date.
- [ ] Is a child close to 21?
  We coordinate a case-specific CSPA review. Do not assume age freezes on the filing date.
- [ ] Will a parent gift the investment?
  Keep evidence of how the donor earned the funds, the gift itself and each bank transfer.
- [ ] Which visa category applies?
  Compare reserved and unreserved categories against current availability. "Current" is not a processing promise.
- [ ] How will life between countries work?
  Discuss study, business, travel and tax advice. Permanent residence involves ongoing U.S. residence obligations.

Child as investor?

A gift changes who is applying

The student's parents are not dependants on the student's EB-5 case. A parent's own application may instead include an eligible spouse and qualifying children.
